

THE FLASH

APRIL 2016

FLASH

Volume 67
Issue 8

From The Editors...

Well, guys, the school year is almost over. It feels like everything is happening at once: Sports, field day, banquet, finals, graduation. Everyone's busy. But in these final weeks of the 2015-2016 school year, don't forget that you probably still have homework to do, you still have to clean your room, and you should still set aside a little time to read your favorite publication, the FLASH. In this issue, you can read about our new staff member, Mr. Fox, the 2016 Presidential race (as of a couple weeks ago, sorry guys), tour choir, and, of course, you can read about some of our own beloved seniors. Hope you enjoy this issue!

Hope you finish out the year strong! I believe in you.

~Jaq

Contents

Pg. 1 - Letter from the Editors
Pg. 2 - "Rocky Mountain High"
Playlist
Pg. 3 - Presidential Race 2016
Pg. 4 - Depression
Pg. 5 - Gunny's Report
Pg. 6 - Seniors vs. Freshmen
Pg. 7 - Not a Shortstop...
Random Facts
Pg. 8 - The Fantastic Mr. Fox
Riddles
Pg. 9 - Deb Bernthal
Pg. 10 - Sam Lisak
Pg. 11 - Tyler Kern
Pg. 12 - Clay Bobek
Pg. 13 - Caitlyn Sandeen

Contributors

Editors

Jaqi Gerbitz
Joci Gamble

Emily Zimmerman
Krystal Sydow
Becca Krause

Contributors

Jon Gamble
Sam Lisak
Olivia Albrecht
Gunnard Sippert
Faith Lillo
Rose Schierenbeck
Calvin Ryan
Danielle Gamble
Julianna Hein
Leah Mackensen
Caitlyn Sandeen
Riley Sotnyk
James Schaser

Layout

Jonah Albrecht
Shannon McDonald
Dannie Gamble

Printers

Tim Schaller
Laura Naumann

Cover

Dannie Gamble

Faculty Advisor

Prof. Lau

“ROCKY MOUNTAIN HIGH”

Faith Lillo

The Tour Choir recently swept through its annual route of concerts over Spring Break, this time heading west. It was one of the youngest choirs Prof Reim has ever traveled with, including two freshman. But we all kept our game faces on and balanced fun with responsibilities. Each congregation along the way welcomed us with smiles and piles of food, and not one stomach growled the whole week. It wasn't until Loveland, Colorado, that we ran into difficulties, getting snowed in at the parsonage. But there's no amount of time that a couple card games can't fill. Coughing spread quickly, but Michaela Naumann made her rounds with bottles of cough syrup to stifle the epidemic before it could shut down the operation. My personal highlights from the tour were watching Drew limp around (after spraining his ankle on a curb), bopping around Estes Park in the Rockies, playing Catchphrase on the bus, and singing at an assisted living center in Colorado. Seeing how much of an impact each concert makes on the audience is amazing; I was constantly amazed by how appreciative and thankful everyone I met was. We're all grateful to have the opportunity to carry such a message. I'll never forget the times I've had during my years in the choir (and my eardrums will never recover from the altitude changes).

Home Plate Faith & Rose Playlist

Spring carries with it a sense of freedom. After being imprisoned indoors all winter, cracking open windows and seeing green is a much-needed refresher. It helps that when good weather comes, baseball is never far behind. Whether you're at the plate, cheering from the bleachers, or picking dandelions in right field, you'll need some music to go with your mood. That's where we come in. For this playlist, we've tried to embody that carefree, summertime spirit by picking songs that have some sunshine in them. With help from some outside sources (thanks, Jon), we chose five modern songs and five older ones, fitting the usual template. As always, you can check out this playlist or music from past issues on Spotify by searching for the username flashplaylists. Happy listening!

“Centerfield” by John Fogerty
“Old Time Rock & Roll” by Bob Seger
“Take Me Home, Country Roads” by John Denver
“Sweet Caroline” by Neil Diamond
“Sittin’ On the Dock of the Bay” by Otis Redding

“Mayberry” by Rascal Flatts
“Fishing in the Dark” by Goldfield Ghost Town
“Springsteen” by Eric Church
“Raised On It” by Sam Hunt
“I Want Crazy” by Hunter Hayes

Presidential Race 2016

Riley Sotnyk

It's 2016, and unless you've successfully been avoiding news channels, social media, or the Principles of Democracy class, you know that the presidential race is happening right now. If you're a local, maybe you noticed that your state voted earlier in April. Just in case you're not sure what's going on, we'll give you a quick run-down.

To decide who the Republican and Democratic parties will select as their nominees, the states go through a rigorous process of primaries and caucuses to assign delegates to a candidate. The candidate who reaches the 'magic number' of delegates first for each party wins the nomination for that party (Republican: 1,237 delegates needed; Democrat: 2,383 delegates needed).

1. Donald Trump
 - A) Republican
 - B) From Manhattan, New York
 - C) President of Trump Organization
2. Ted Cruz
 - A) Republican
 - B) Houston, Texas
 - C) U.S. Senator for Texas
3. John Kasich
 - A) Republican
 - B) From Westerville, Ohio
 - C) Governor of Ohio
4. Hillary Clinton
 - A) Democrat
 - B) From Chappaqua, New York
 - C) Former Secretary of State and former First Lady
5. Bernie Sanders
 - A) Democrat
 - B) From Burlington, Vermont
 - C) U.S. Senator for Vermont
6. Gary Johnson
 - A) Libertarian
 - B) From Taos, New Mexico
 - C) Former Governor of New Mexico
7. Jill Stein
 - A) Green Party member
 - B) From Lexington, Massachusetts
 - C) Physician

The Democratic party looks as if Hillary Clinton will win the nominee with needing only around 600 more delegates out of the 1,938 delegates left. However, Donald Trump, the leader of the Republican party right now needs around 500 more delegates to win the Republican party and there are only 854 delegates left for the Republicans. If Donald Trump doesn't get enough votes to win the party, it will go to a brokered convention. A brokered convention is a situation where a candidate doesn't get a majority of their party's delegates. The first vote is then placed by the delegates to the nominee who won them. When that shows no real majority, the convention is brokered. The next vote then happens and the delegates can vote for whomever they desire. This voting keeps occurring until one nominee has won a majority of the party's delegates.

We've taken a poll of the 32 seniors to get a general consensus of who the ILHS class of 2016 would vote for.

Ted Cruz	Donald Trump	John Kasich	Hillary Clinton	Bernie Sanders	Gary Johnson	Jill Stein	Abstainers
22 (69%)	4 (13%)	2 (6%)	0 (0%)	1 (3%)	0 (0%)	0 (0%)	3 (9%)

Depression

Luke Mayhew

About 25% of people suffer from major depression at some point during their high school career. Obviously, this isn't a good thing when you see the numbers, but what exactly is depression? What is it that we are dealing with?

Depression is prolonged feelings of loneliness, emptiness, or anger. These emotions can last for several weeks, months, or even longer. It is more than a bad day, or feeling angry at your friend because they said something that you didn't want to hear. That isn't what I'm focusing on, although these will probably help those people as well.

Some signs of depression can include:

A loss of enjoyment in several activities you used to love.

Having problems getting to sleep or staying asleep.

Having difficulty thinking straight or making decisions.

If you are struggling with depression yourself, talk to an adult. Depression is treatable. However, there are some things you can do on your own to help. My number one advice would be to get out and be active. Depression festers on loneliness, and it focuses your thoughts on yourself. "I feel angry because..." Or "I feel empty because..." We humans like to focus on ourselves, and it doesn't help depression. Getting out and being active can help get you out of the me, me, me, mindset.

If you know someone who is struggling with depression, there are things you can do to help them. Depression isn't something that will go away overnight, but there are a few things to keep in mind.

The Don'ts

Telling them that they need to "Shape up and fix their life" will only make the problem worse. It isn't something that they can flip a switch for and be fine.

Misunderstanding the fact that their problems are very real. If you think they "just need to suck it up," they will believe they are more alone than ever before. Can you imagine what it would be like if your closest friend told you he didn't believe you actually had a problem? It isn't a good feeling.

Logic won't work with a depressed person. You cannot "prove" to them why what they feel is crazy or irrational. Depressed people's minds function in a completely different way than ours do, and something that makes perfect sense to you may not get through to them.

The Do's

Go out of your way to SHOW them that you love them. If you say "I care about you and I will support you," that is one thing, but words only go so far. However, if you go and buy a Snickers for your friend because you know it's his favorite, it will have a much greater impact on him.

Just be there for them. Words can't fix everything, and sometimes people just need someone present. It really does make a difference, and it will affect them positively.

Finally, prayer. Prayer is an amazing thing that God has given to us for our benefit, and you can talk to Him about yourself or your friends. 1 Peter 5:7 says, "Cast all your cares upon Him, for He cares for you." You can take your problems and worries to God, because He loves you and cares about you more deeply than anyone can even fathom.

Gunny's Report

Track & Field

Gunnard Sippert

For years and years at ILHS, the only sports offered for the spring season were found on the diamond. Four years ago, however, an addition was made in the list of end-of-year athletics; our Track and Field team was established back in 2013. Partially created because of the incredible talent of now-graduated distance runner Darin Lau (as told in his WEAU 13 Gordy's Athlete of the Week segment), the program now has over twenty high schoolers which run, jump, and throw for it. The large amount of success of the team has been impressive in the first three years. State appearances have been made by long-distance runners Darin (2013,'14), Caleb Oster ('13) and Abby Naumann ('14, '15), sprinter Abi Bernthal ('13, '14), long jumper Kayla Barthels ('15), and a 4x400 relay team ('14) of Rhiannon Roehl, Kayla Barthels, Riley Noeldner, and Abi Bernthal. Lau won the 2-mile race in both 2013 and 2014 (State Record).

Now turning our focus to this year, Barthels is the only current athlete with a trip to State under her belt. Don't let this deceive you, however, as the team has an impressive stock of talent this year.

Runners

With more students on the team than ever, Immanuel is now able to participate in a variety of track events. The Lancers runners whose results should have an eye kept on them throughout the season are Alex Garvens (100m, 300 hurdles), Barthels (100), Marcus Noeldner (200, 400), Jesse Noeldner (200, 400) and Dan Lau (1600, 3200).

ILHS is also sending out three impressive relay teams this year. The girls 4x200 team of Cassidy Noeldner, Barthels, Garvens, and Rebecca Krause, with alternates Julianna Hein and Dannie Gamble, has taken first at each of their two meets so far.

The boys 4x200 (Matt White, Sam Oster, Sean Lillo, Gabe Plath) and 4x400 (Calvin Ryan, Austin Karow, M. Noeldner, J. Noeldner, and alternate Adam Fiechtner) have each taken first once this year. The 4x400 team also has a second-place finish.

Jumpers

Senior Kayla Barthels will be looking to return to State in the long jump after she qualified for the highest meet possible last year. She is joined by fellow senior Brooke Wendland (high jump) who has twice made it to Sectionals, the last step to climb before State. Freshman Julianna Hein will also be participating in the high jump. Cassidy Noeldner will be aiming to have a successful season in the triple jump along with Wendland (2014 Sectional qualifier).

On the boys side of things, senior Calvin Ryan (5th place finish at Gilman meet) will be leading the long jumpers. Sean Lillo (3rd place finish at Eleva-Strum) has been the Lancers' top high jumper through two meets.

Throwers

Phil Schaller is in his fourth season of Track and Field; it's been a successful one so far for the senior. He has taken 2nd and 5th in shot put in the first two meets of the year. Nick White leads the Lancers in discus (5th place finish at Gilman).

Hannah Fox has been the top girl for shot put thus far, and fellow sophomore Kendra Naumann has led the girls in discus.

A Senior's Perspective on Freshmen

Riley Sotnyk

Just a forewarning to everybody that this is the first article I have written, so it probably will be bad. But here it goes. When I walked into my first day of school as a freshman, I was excited but also nervous. I was the lowest person on the totem pole of high school. Going from “big dog” of grade school, to lowest person in high school is a big jump. When I was a freshman, every once in awhile we heard seniors tell us that we needed to “learn your position” or do “fill-in-the-blank” “cause we were freshman. I can remember specific days when certain seniors (not going to name names) had done stuff to us, said something to us, or made us do things because of our inferior status. The senior guys were definitely meaner to the freshmen guys than the senior girls to the freshman girls. If you were a dormie, the chances of feeling “bullied” rise a lot.

My thoughts on the seniors now are definitely going to be biased, but I will try my best to be fair. I think the freshmen now and the freshmen to come are going to have it easier than people did before them. I felt I had it easy when I was a freshman compared to stories I heard from my parents and people their age. So, to the freshmen of this year, if you think you are being bullied by us or feeling low on the totem pole, don't be afraid to stand up to us. We don't bite. We could just be feeling what most senior classes feel. Being the “big dogs” again can go to our heads. From what I know, I don't think the seniors this year physically bully the freshmen at all, and I can almost say for a fact, that I think verbal stuff has happened, even though it shouldn't. We try our best to keep everyone at the same level at this school, all four classes.

So, in conclusion, I want to say that we try our best to be good examples to all the classes, and lead like Jesus tells us to, but we all fall short sometimes. The benefit, though, for the freshmen, and all the students, is that we have ILC and our Christian upbringing. This school has WAY less bullying than a public school. If we were a public school there would be big fights and people degrading others all the time. So be thankful for the school we have. Also, the Christian upbringing we have and the lessons we learn from our parents teach us and demonstrate that we are to be respectful, kind, and caring to our neighbor, to give thanks to the Lord, and to receive that same respect and kindness back. If we all get along at this school, everything will run better, everyone will be happier, and all people will be able to enjoy their four fun years of high school.

A Freshman's Perspective on Seniors

Krystal Sydow

The freshman get teased by the seniors; that is no surprise. Most of them are just comments about how freshmen are stupid and immature, which may or may not be true. Most freshman (at least the girls), understand that it is just fun teasing and people trying to be funny. Others (mostly guys), don't. They take it as a threat and try to outdo the senior that has “insulted them.” I think that the seniors tease the freshman because they want to flaunt their seniority over the younger students and they had to go through the same thing when they were freshmen. These comments can be taken as funny or as demeaning and insulting, but we can definitely survive.

An excerpt from the ILHS student Handbook:

STUDENT HARASSMENT AND INTIMIDATION

“Be imitators of God, therefore, as dearly loved children and live a life of love, just as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us as a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God” (Ephesians 5:1-2). Every student who attends Immanuel should be able to enjoy to the fullest the blessings and benefits of the Christian instruction and fellowship here at our school. Everyone should be able to do this without threat or fear of any abuse, intimidation, revenge, reprisal, or rumor from anyone, including fellow students. Hazing is by its very nature harassment and abusive since the intent is to establish personal or class privilege by force or threat of force. Too often the excuse is used that it is all in fun. However, if it is not fun for both parties, then it is harassment. Hazing can be anything from verbal or physical abuse to the extortion of food from fellow residents. You should use two criteria to help you determine if your actions are appropriate: 1. Is what I'm doing an expression of Christian love? 2. Are my words or actions unwanted or unwelcome? Student hazing of any kind will not be tolerated. Instances of hazing will be reported to the dean of students for investigation and application of appropriate discipline.

Not a Shortstop, Just Short

Jonathan Gamble

It's baseball season, so I decided I'd entertain you with an interesting sample of baseball's humorous history.

Think of the shortest friend you have. Maybe a younger sibling. Maybe Fiechtner. Just think of a short person. Now imagine this person was playing in the MLB. And his team even was cruel enough to give him a small number. Not #1, not #3. No, $\frac{1}{8}$ to be exact. Now you are coming close to imagining the story of Eddie Gaedel.

Coming in at 3'7" and 65 pounds, 26-year-old Eddie Gaedel appeared in a game on August 19, 1951, for the St. Louis (now defunct) Browns. Gaedel had been signed two days before by the eccentric owner Bill Veeck. Veeck was known for his publicity stunts, and signed Gaedel to entertain the crowd in celebration of the American League's 50th anniversary. He informed Gaedel that he was to draw a walk with his minuscule strike zone. Gaedel was even told by Veeck that a $1 million dollar life insurance policy had been taken out on his life and Veeck would personally shoot him if he even looked like he might swing. Detroit Tigers pitcher Bob Cain threw four straight balls and Gaedel walked into baseball history (and was pinch-run for immediately after reaching first base).

The next day, MLB voided Gaedel's contract, claiming Veeck was making a mockery of the game. Bill Veeck shot back, threatening that he would request a ruling whether Yankees shortstop Phil Rizzuto was a "short ballplayer or a tall midget." He ended his career with an on-base percentage of 1.000.

Gaedel's story ends badly, with his death at age 36 from a beating in his hometown of Chicago. Bob Cain, the pitcher who walked him, was the only MLB figure to attend his funeral.

RaNDOM

FACTS Julianna Hein

- Pineapples are not a single fruit, but a group of berries that have fused together.
- Apples are more efficient at waking you up in the morning than caffeine.
- It takes up to 2,900 gallons of water to make one pair of jeans.
- Swans only have one partner for their whole life. If their partner dies, they could pass away from a broken heart.
- All the characters in Toy Story blink one eye at a time.
- More than 80 million Hershey's Kisses are produced every day.
- Only 2% of the Earth's human population have green eyes.
- When a male penguin falls in love with a female penguin, he searches the entire beach to find the perfect pebble to present her. (Sounds like a rocky start.)

7

Deborah Amelia Irene Bernthal

Becca Krause

Q: When and where were you born?

A: I don't know where I was born, but November 2, 1997. Somewhere in MI.

Q: If you were trapped in a jungle, how would you get out?

A: I'd probably set the forest on fire. Someone would probably find me.

Q: What's your dream vacation spot?

A: My couch.

Q: What are three words to describe being the youngest of seven?

A: Broken white crayon.

Q: Describe your dream job.

A: I don't know, getting paid to do nothing, but that would get boring. Landscaping would be nice.

Q: Dreamworks or Disney?

A: Dreamworks.

Q: How would you describe your drawing style?

A: Pathetic and almost non-existent.

Q: How does it feel to wait for Kingdom Hearts III for so long?

A: Kind of like you're standing in a desert and someone walks by you with a bottle of water and drinks it and walks away.

Q: Advice for newbs?

A: Don't be cocky. Colors speak a thousand languages. Be social.

Favorites

Music genre: Anything but country and jazz.

Animal: Cat or sloth

Movie: Series of Unfortunate Events

Animated Male: Kyo, Link, Sora, Ichigo

Animated Female: Tohru, Uo, Erza

Sport: Soccer

Pinterest board: All of them. Pinterest is my life.

Meme: Howdilly doodily neighborino.

Final Fantasy: 8, 9, 10

Samuel Jacob Lisak

Joci Gamble

JG: When and where?

SL: Waukesha, WI. February 21, 1998.

JG: How are you feeling?

SL: I'm feeling stupendous. #it'sfriday

JG: Why are you trying to steal the Flash from me?

SL: I just want to write all the articles I can.

JG: Have I/we destroyed your ego with our slightly racist teasing yet?

SL: You've probably made it worse by giving it more attention.

JG: Ok. To the business now. What are your plans for next year?

SL: I'm going to UWM, not entirely sure what for, but I have it narrowed down.

JG: I know this one'll be hard. Favorite high school memory?

SL: Oh my goodness. Anything the crew does is memorable. Probably the night we went sledding.

JG: Any advice for the little ones?

SL: Don't forget to spend lots of quality time with your friends. And live in the moment. Sometimes.

JG: Is it hard to belong to such a perfect family?

SL: (laughs) No. If you just smile and makes jokes, they won't notice you aren't perfect.

Favorites

Prof: I love all of them differently, but, I gotta go with Kranz.

ILC Meal: Gyros

Class: Con Econ

Sports Team: Brewers

In 10 Years

Matt W. - He's gonna be a famous stand-up comedian, and a leader in the fight against discrimination of brown and diabetic people (caused mostly by Joci)

Jonah A. -Running a very successful athletic shoe store and living in a fancy place with all the cars of his dreams.

Joci G. - Sam's McDonald's bingeing has finally caught up to him, and he's pushing 300lbs. His days spent in the sun coaching Little League have made him even browner, and he's still ranting to anyone who'll listen about the puke in the stairwell.

Speed Round

Ok, real quick, we'll do a SPEED ROUND

Forks or spoons? spoons

Trump or Clinton? Trump

Baseball or basketball? baseball

Joci or Joci? Saucy

Dibto or Octo? Octo

Tyler J. Kern

Sam Lisak

AKA Willie

When and where were you born? June 7, 1997, in Fond du Lac, WI

Where did Willie come from? Willie started when Joe Schierenbeck thought I looked like Willie from Swamp People and it stuck ever since.

Plans after high school? College in IT Department for Web Design, starting job at coffee house, and hopefully get another job.

If you could be any animal, which one and why? Monkey. They live in trees and can swing around all they want.

Favorite high school memory? The Creek

Desert Island, 3 things? Food, way to get communication, and a double ended machete.

What inspired your famous winter creek plunge video? I was in the dorm. I was probably bored out of my mind and wanted to do something and said, "Hey, guys, I'm going to the creek to plunge." That's probably what happened.

What is one historical event you wish you could go back and see? The unveiling of Minecraft for the first time.

If you could be any object, what would you be? A tree

Any advice for the kiddos? Make sure you do your homework beforehand so you can potato farm.

Favorites

Food: PBJ

Prof: Schaller

Bible Passage: Proverbs 3:5

Atari Game: Asteroids

Tree: Maple

Board Game: Monopoly

Shirt: Green

Chain Store: Culvers

Movie: Star Wars

Word: I don't know

Time-Killing Activity: Minecraft

TV Show: Hawaii Five-0

John Clay Bobek

(Steer Dealer extraordinaire, Champion Pig Winner, Donuts and Dew Headmaster)

When and where were you born?

Berlin, WI, on April 10, 1998

What was it like growing up on a farm? "Hard work is fun," to quote my dad.

Favorite Childhood memory? Winning grand champion pig in 2012.

How many competitions do you enter animals? For steers, 3.

If you could have dinner with ANY 3 people, who would you choose? (There was a lot of deliberation here), but he finally went with John Deere, JFK, and George Strait.

What skill do you wish you had? Skill of negotiation.

Describe your ideal location? King Ranch, Texas.

Favorite high school memory? Either getting ejected from the baseball game or the potato cannon.

Any advice for the youngins? When in doubt, quote Michael Scott.

Plans after high school? Study Ag(ricultural) Business at Iowa St.

Favorites

Food: Steak Dinner

Prof: Lau

Bible Passage: Psalm 86:11

Candy: Milky Way

Athlete: Kobe Bryant

Vehicle: the Compensator

Crop: Celery

Element: K (Potassium)

McDonald Menu Item: McDouble

Superhero: Batman

Sports Team Mascot: (We browsed many a mascot online) Coney the Cone from Scream Queens

Animal: Lynx

Country's Flag: 'Murica

In 10 Years...

Matt: He's gonna own the biggest farm this side of the Mississippi River and be making millions.

Bryan: He's gonna be hoarding steers and selling them all at once to be a multi-millionaire and give money to ILC and use money to make potato farms somewhere where they grow potatoes, then he's gonna lose it all to Matt in a game of poker then become a city slicker working at KFC.

CAITLYN JESSICA SANDEEN

FEARLESS LIBERO, BELOVED MANAGER, & SOUL SISTER

Q: When and where were you born?

A: Fargo, ND, April 12, 1998.

Q: Describe what it's like having your mother in charge of the dorm in one word.

A: after a long pause Interesting.

Q: Is there a story behind your dad's nickname "Big Searg"?

A: Maggie was driving with my dad and I, and she just asked to call him Big Searg.

Q: What's the scoop (or slice) on Spicy Pie? A: Oh, psh. It's the best place ever. I would live there if I could.

Q: What has it been like being a manager for the girls basketball team and the guys baseball team? A: Managing for the girls was sometimes annoying... I got whipped in the face more than once. But the guys are definitely more "high maintenance."

Q: Favorite high school memory? What will you miss the most?

A: Either not being dorned or Kayla's surprise party. I'll miss having all my friends around all the time.

Q: Cliché deserted island question: what three things do you bring?

A: My dad (he's good at survival things), a water filter system thing (that's smart, right?), and supplies to build a boat.

Q: Plans after high school?

A: I'm going to UWEC for nursing.

Q: Any advice to the youngsters?

A: Don't get caught up in all the drama. Enjoy your high school career while you can.

FAVORITES

Prof: I don't have one.

TV Show: The Flash or Downton Abbey

Class: Art

Musical Artist: Charlie Puth

Color: Yellow

Movie: No Reservations

Sibling: Curtis

IN 10 YEARS...

Olivia: Living in California with her super handsome doctor husband who owns five horses. She rides these horses in her free time while running her own business that sells things she's made.

Kayla: Happily married, owning her own horse ranch in the middle of nowhere. She'll be a wonderful mother who spends her days drinking coffee, riding horses, adopting kittens, and becoming famous for her British accent.

Mrs. Sandeen: She's a neonatal nurse in one of the best hospitals in the country. She's married to a doctor who is also in the military. She has two kids, one boy and one girl, and a dog. She also bought both her mom and dad a sports car.